Our Stamford-based attorneys represent decades of collective experience in local and national litigation, contributing to Wilson Elser's reputation as a premier firm offering diverse legal services to a broad spectrum of clients. By virtue of our “insider” experience in various government institutions, we frequently serve our clients as liaison to local and national regulatory agencies.

Wilson Elser opened its Stamford office in 2004 in a state well-known for its insurance industry. Fueled by expansion of business from neighboring New York City and its position along the East Coast Corridor, Stamford has become a formidable commercial intercessor statewide.

We offer ready access to virtually any legal service, drawing on the collective experience resident among our own attorneys and our colleagues throughout the broader firm. Wilson Elser’s national practice team structure, leveraging the benefits of technology, make it possible for one point of contact to marshal any or all of the resources our clients require to advance even their most ambitious legal objectives.
